Contact us – no cost, no obligation

We’re committed to providing services that are as tailored and effective as they are affordable – ultimately saving you time and money – which is why we offer free initial phone consultations.

If you choose to self-refer, you’ll find our fees are highly competitive. What’s more, because we’re a registered Medicare provider, you may be eligible for Medicare rebates if you’re referred to us by your GP, general paediatrician or psychiatrist.

Either way, we’re here to help and answer your questions, so get in touch:

Take control of your cancer journey.

Independent advice. Emotional support.
Personalised care.

You can't change your cancer diagnosis.

But you can define your cancer journey.

When you're diagnosed with cancer, it can feel like you've lost control of your life. It can seem like you're stuck in a dizzying whirlwind of medical choices, practical considerations, physical effects and emotional stress. But that's why we're here – to help you take control of your cancer journey.

What we do

At Cirqol, we provide practical advice, emotional counselling and social support for people with cancer, as well as their families and friends.

We offer the independent guidance and one-on-one help you need to formulate a tailored, co-ordinated care plan that enables you to:

- Understand your priorities and options
- Make informed choices
- Select the right ancillary care services
- Manage the impacts of treatment
- Transition out of hospital care
- Build a recovery plan that's right for you
- Maximise your quality of life

How we do it

We do everything in partnership – in partnership with you, your family and your GP, hospital and ancillary care services. In fact, we collaborate with everyone in your care circle.

It's this holistic approach that not only makes our service unique, but provides you with a completely integrated, individual solution that ensures you enjoy the best care and quality of life throughout your cancer journey.
